LADIES' DEPARTMENT.

EDITED BY MRS. M. R. WALTON.

PUBLISHER'S NOTICE -All communications intended for this department should be addressed to MRS. M. R. WALTON, Fort Worth, Tex.

TET HAD KNOWN.

If I had known in the morning. The words unkind Would trouble mind would trouble away, said when you went away, more exceful, darling, Nor given you needless pain. But we vex "our own" Hook and tone We might nevertake back again.

For though in the quietevening.
You may give me the kiss of peace,
Yet it might be
That never for me
The pain of the heart should cease.
How many go forth in the morning
That never come home at night
And hearts have broken
And harsh words spoken
That sorrow can ne'er set right.

We have caroful thoughts for the stranger

We have carolul thoughts for the strain
And similes for the coming guest:
But oft for our own.
The litter tone.
Though we love "our own." the best!
Ah, lips with the curve impatient.
Ah, brow with that look of scorn.
Twere a cruel fale.
Were the night too late.

Were the night too late To undo the work of the morn. - [Marguret E. Sangster

IN BRIEF.

res, we love "our own" the best, but why is it that it is "our own" towards whom there is the least manifestation of affection? Day after day and sometimes year after year those most beloved live without caresses or words of endearment yet almost everyone will own to a fondness for evidences of affection, and all have a yearning for love. There is no sight more ovely than a home where love prevails and in which the members of the family vie with each other in a desire to make those who dwell under the same roof happy by manifesting, not only in acts of kindness but by word and caress, the love that is

A man is reported to have said that he had lived forty years with his wife and children without kissing any of them Think of the cheerlessness of such a home and of what a woman must become under such petrifying influences! Think of the young life chilled, the affections blunted and noble sentiments dwarfed in a sunless home, it such a dwelling could be called

The word that is sharper than a serpent's tooth, the look that repels all sentiment, or it may be only the absence of the kind word. the nerlect to perform an act of courtesy such as would be invariably tendered a stranger, are sufficient to grieve a sensitive nature and fatally check the growth and ripening of that love which is the strongest

The absorbing perplexities of daily life in business and at home have a tendency to make husbands and wives, fathers and mothers careless, and pain is often inflicted without a thought. Said a wife, "Kiss me while I live:" a dying mother said, "You never told me so before," when the son bent over her and whispered in the ear fast growing dull, "You've been a good mother

Why should we be so chary in evincing love for the ones at home, or show so little appreciation of their efforts to give pleas ure! If the wife, mother or sister are kind, if they look pretty or say a bright thing, what reason is there for chariness in praise? The language of compliment passes outer circle, and the few who do not use it in a greater or less degree. Is there any just cause for withholding it from circulation within the charmed circle of home?

Praise for well-doing is a better stimu lant than fault-finding, whether it be bestowed on children or their elders. Consciousness of well-doing is pleasing to one's self, but that the well-doing is pleasing to others is a stimulant that nerves to further effort, and goes on compounding pleasure until the hands that wrought so faithfully are still, and the soul, grown full of love, is called to dwell forever in that kingdom where love reigns and where the weildoing of earth is not only remembered, but is commended before the great assemblage and eternally rewarded in the presence of the hosts of heaven and earth.

Musty old doctors comprising the sanitary board in Vienna have recommended a tax moon trailing dresses, as a measure to restrict what they please to term a most dangerous and unhealthy fashion. If the recommendation becomes a law, the office of tax collector will not be a sinecure. Imagine this Paul Pry, with tape line in band, overhauling women's gowns to see if they are of legal length, and the storms of abuse he must receive from the owners at seeing their robes so sacrilegiously handled.

While it must be granted that trailing street dresses are not neat, and that much of the nastiness, owing to men's uncleanly habits, is thus carried off on women's skirts even as emperor who is absolute will be apt to find that his power is not supreme when he invades the realm of fashion. There is little likelihood that any attempt to create such a tax would be made in America, for while American women have quietly submitted for more than a century to taxation without representation, and American men bend under the burden of the McKinley bill, madame is likely to resent any interference in the matter of long skirts so long as the trailing skirt is in style. Women vote unanimously for a city legislation that enforces the keeping clean of streets and pavements, both as a sanitary and decent measure, but will continue to hold up the trail, even at the risk of showing a trim foot and small ankle, despite what men may say of the absurdity or un-

Egotism has many phases and is often carefully concealed under quaint disguises, but it is somewhat startling to hear, and that from a well qualified critic, the most popular poets charged with this in their poetry. Ordinary mortals who fail to understand George Meredith and Robert Browning will take a certain malicious pleasure in knowing that they are charged with hurting the English language "by undoing all the purity and precision the Eighteenth century won for it at great cost and pain." That they have done this for their own selfish ends. and have frequently written neither poetry nor English. Poets have always been supposed to lie close to the heart of nature, and their utterances to be the simple ones that appeal to all who have not bartered their birthright, and there seems a truth in the charge made against these two writers, when it is remembered that it has been thought necessary to organize societies for the interpretation of the thought supposed to be enwrapped in the mysticism they affect. Authors have a duty to their readers, and the fact of societies and handbooks to explain any man's writing is a serious accusation against him. If the "message" these poets have claimed to be theirs to con vey is so difficult of comprehension in this, their day, what will it be to the generations to come? Better the homely song of him who sang of the peasant than all the versifying of the modern who thus sums up his method-

"As I walked by myself, I talked to my-self, and thus to myself talked I."

The autumn days have come now in the Northern latitudes: the maples begin to put on their bright hues and the golden atching and hiding in its heart the warm golden tints of the summer sunshine now avishly scatters her hoarded wealth and gaily nods gay biossoms to every passer-by This month the September girl expects sapphire of her own, and to miss her birth tone is to fail of possession in the sweet favor of life. It is hoped her friends will not forget the pretty superstition she cher ishes and that her jewel case may show many such favors from those who love her

Do any of the readers of this column indulge in paper-covered literature! If so, let them read Miss Kate Sanborn's "Adopting an Abandoned Farm." She tells of her failures in a most fascinating way, and the book is entirely free from that unhealthy sentiment which is found in what Dr. Tal mage denounces as "summer reading. One may lie in a hammock and read this with pleasure or while away the dullness of travel without detriment to their intel ectual nature. Fiction such as this, if it be lection, has the ring of heartiness and is no more enervating than are the soft blue skies, skimming swallows, soft-tinkling water, the faint perfume of flowers and all that go to make a summer holiday restful and happy.

There is danger of bringing wrath upon your devoted head by saying, and yet truth has in all ages had its martyrs, and why not add another to the noble army? Why cannot mothers learn that excessive fondness for their offspring is a weakness; pardonable perhaps, but still a weakness that often exhibits itself in forms very trying to others!

Reader, have you not ever called upon mother for the purpose of having a pleasant conversation and found yourself thwarted by some obstreperous youngster whose every movement you are called upon to admire? However pleasant the interchange of thought would be, all is abandoned for the worship of mamma's "prettiest, sweetest and best of babies." Mothers should remember that ever since Cain cut his first tooth and crowed and jumped in Mother Eve's arms, babies have been performing the same marvels, and that it is better for the babies and their mothers that they be not always on exhibition. Mothers who live in their nurse think only of their maternal duties, risk growing puerile and thus becoming uninteresting to husbands and friends. Love the babies of course, but do not expect everyone to see in them all the perfections you discern, and remember that babyhood is short, and it is necessary to keep the mind in a growing state in order to meet the demand this same baby will make upon your intellectual nature as the years go on.

CHAT ON FASHION.

Between the seasons is a favorable time to discuss dress reform. Autumn fashions are not yet pronounced, although summer costume are getting shabby. The butter flies that flit from one watering place to another are touthe to exchange their orange and black for the demurer shades in gray and brown. Yet even of them it is said that in their flittings they stop long enough in some large city to order costumes to come to them at their next stopping place, to be carefully folded in long boxes with a longer bill for husband or papa to settle. The reformers pay little heed to the gay ones and have been busy of late in trying to invent a suit suitable for ladies' outdoor wear. The 300 of Boston have given it their approval and are pledged to wear it the first stormy day in October. It is described as a dark striped chevioaskirt worn half way to the ankles, with a deep cape of the same material and a blouse or shirtwaist of silk, flannel or the same material, and a small, neat hat, felt or dark straw, rather of the English walking or toque shape, trimmed with wings and ribbon bows.

The lower part of the limbs are to be covered with cloth or fine leather gaitereites to correspond with the shade of the rown, and a neat umbrella and four-button glace kid or Biarritz gloves will complete the costume. London offers the strongminded a model that is made of cheviot or serge. This is also worn with gaiterettes, has a cap of the goods, a cutaway four-button coat basque, with rolled collar and outside hip pockets and a vest of solid colored cloth, which shows above and below the four buttons. The skirt hangs like an ordinary round one with most of the fullness at the back, but it is in reality like a very wide bag, seamed upon the under side, with two holes left to thrust the feet through, hence the name of "inclosed"

While Boston and London are inventing common sense costumes, New York women consider it their religious duty to dress as becomingly as possible and to look their prettiest in all weathers. For them, and all women like them, the merchants are displaying cheviots, cashmeres surahs, Henrietta cloth and merinos. In solid colors there are diagonal cheveons, stripes, single and double plaids in all colors and of every shade. Some of the plaids in black and white are from two o three inches, and have long hair woven in that which is left to hang at quite a length. Mixtures of gray and white, gray and black as grounds, carry nap effects in gray or colors, which are very pleasing,

Carding is being used for early fall wed ding trip gowns and cloth for those to be used later.

Ginghams are still shown in gay plaids, with discs and half moons, some irrolain red with white moons. These are made simply, usually a round skirt with the bodice full on the shoulder and gathered into a belt.

In heavier material all skirts are made clinging and very narrow, cut on the cross and decidedly long in the back.

Coats continue to be worn, and open over a bouffant plastron with a high, rolling collar outside of a straight band embroidered either in gold or in some shade to harmon ize with the gown; there is also a small high-shouldered cape that can be worn in the cool days. The art of skirtmaking is put to a new test in the umbrella skirt, which is as close-fitting, as the name in dicates. It is cut with two narrow gores on each side, and the seams are often fin ished with a large velvet cord. It is right to say, however, that the style is only adopted by women of pronounced tastes who are always on the lookout for some thing new. The advance numbers in millinery lines give much space to what seem small affairs. although in reality a very important part of a woman's toilet. In hats and bonnets the small effect seems still to predominate and the bent is to bend them into as many fantastic shapes as possible. In hats the low crowns still find favor, and felt and fur will be largely used. Coque plumes, small birds with outstretched wings and owls' heads are used in trimming. A felt flat has a crown made of a large pour of estrich feathers the color of the felt, an aigrette and a bunch of three ostrich tips is in the front of the brim and another rests at the back. A brown felt has a straight brim narrow back and an edging of feathers on the brim. Ruche of feathers around the crown, with aigrette and made feathers in the back similar to an elaborate pour. Buterfly of brown and gold beads in front, Armure ribbon will be used this winter. and a house in New York has ordered. Nos. od and 30 for their evelocive tende.

The gold and jewel craze has subsided and all of the trimmings for the fall season show an absence of the candy tinsel. The black and colored iet effects seen on made feathers are sometimes called lewels, but they are not the tinsel and lewel effects of a year ago.

Just now lace and flowers are sparingly used, but the gravitation towards aigrettes, wings and coque's plumes is very marked.

NOTES.

Handkerchiefs of India crepe are very

"Unmounted" flowers, viz., not showing any stems or foliage, are massed closely for trimming the foot and neck of evening

The simplest design for a challis, China silk or brocaded surah afternoon gown has a round skirt, with most of the fullness massed at the back, edged with two gath ered flounces, each having a row on the edge of narrow silk or jet gimp. For the fall shopping a dress of striped heviot trimmed with velvet collar, border and, if slender, girdle of velvet, or an edging of gimp in brown or dark blue effect will prove appropriate and neat, and will also answer for a traveling gown if a fall In London the favorite shepherd's plaid gowns are worn with shoes of a tiny black and white check, foxed with kid or patent leather.

Sashes of all kinds are to be used again on plain skirts, twisted around the waist, crossed, tied carelessly behind without oops or bows, etc. The close-fitting skirt has a fan back and arrow plaiting set on the edge of the front and sides. Paris dandies wear a four-in-hand scarf of bright red China silk with afternoon The round waist is fulled at the shoulders and waist line, and is worn under a corsel that is nearly covered with gimp. Colored centers for dinner tables seem to have had their day, those of white Irish linen with open work border growing constantly more popular. The basque now favored is cut away from the neck, with high sleeves and rolling col-lar, worn over a detachable vest of silk or crepe, ending with a belt of the same passing under the lacket fronts.

A magnificent christening robe of Vulen-ciennes insertion and drawn work is lined with pale blue satin and worn with a white satin sash tied under the left arm. Long coat backs are worn on Paristan basques having a pointed front.

Nice adornments in the shape of large collars or breast-pieces are made for toil-ettes and are worn either over the dress or inder the open Jacket waist. An angula collar, fastened to a standing collar of black guipure, is of rose silk muslin ptisse, and is trimmed with black guipure lace. A negligee dress of batiste has a jacket that fits well at the back and loose in front which closes with buttons. The sides of the front lengths have small scams and embroidered entredeux alternating. Ribbon bows are provided at the sides.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

A great deal of bread is wasted in making the fashionable sandwich of the day, which has the crust all cut off and is made into tiny triangular shapes. Watermelon for breakfast is more of a too, that has the indersement of medical To remove rust from knives cover the blades with sweet oil for a day or two, and then rub with a lump of fresh lime. A not iron-poker, if nothing better-run around window glass will loosen the putty when it may be easily scraped and the proken pane removed. French chalk serves an admirable purpos in cleaning laces and gloves. It will also remove grease by laying it on the spot and using a warm iron with brown paper be-

An old silk handkerchief makes an excellent duster, and there is nothing better than a pointed carriage brush to get the dust out of the crevices in bronze orna-

A few drops of oil from the sewing mae can will stop the creaking of the hiuge.

MATINEES AND TEA JACKETS.

New and Dainty Styles in Cambric, Lace China Crape, Etc., Described. Delightfully fresh are the matinees in white muslin and cambric and trimmed with lace or embroidery. One seen was made with the new long jacket fronts of embroidery and edged with lace. The whole of the front was composed of Valen ciennes insertion, put in diagonally, and the sleeves were also made of lace. Another very stylish one was made of French musin, partly plain and partly embroidered A frill of Mauresque lace went around the bottom of the skirt, the jacket having long coat tails. This make had a small yoke made with narrow tacks, the yoke and the lacket were outlined with pale blue ribbon covered with musiin, which had a very

A NEW TEA JACKET. Black tea jackets are being worn a good deal; one in black satin with long loose coat fronts, a jabot of pale mauve soft silk and lace and sleeves was decidedly effective. Very new looking, too, was another in black satin, which had a white crepe de Chine front and deep full collar.

In the accompanying cut is illustrated a charming tea jacket in yellow crepon, studded with irridescent beads. The full sleeves are in China crape. Figured lace trimming forms the cascades and stylish epaulettes. A silken girdle encircles the Fashious in Jewelry, Elsie Bee notes the following in Jewelers'

Rings of repousse silver in which a dia mond is sunk are intended for men. A charming necklace is of graded piece of pale pink coral set between diamonds. The marquise ring commands all style but is susceptible of many variations. Topaz rings are considered especially be coming to the hand. But to be elegant, topaz requires the accompaniment of fine

Queen chains made of two inch links of fine gold connected by coral, pearls or onyx seem to imitate the long chains that are now worn in Paris. A bracelet of blue enamel has the shape of a plain band bordered by a straight row of tiny diamonds. The fastening is a but ton in a gold bound buttonhole.

Fob chains and chatelaines imitate the woven wire souvenir chains that come from Venice. These consist of squares of platinum and gold alternating.

Handsome Parasols.

Parasols used at fashionable summer resorts are things of beauty. Some are strewn with flowers, and nearly all trimmed with frills of gauze. The handles in many instances are of Dresden china or mother-of-pearl. One very elaborate parasol composed of white chiffon and lace is showered over with imitation diamonds. Another made of the same materials is adorned with two huge gold and white butterflies. A third has lilies of the valley strewn over it. A pretty parasol of light blue chiffon is decorated with festooned flounces and tiny bunches of forgetmenots. The newest en toutees have gold borders. A rather smart one of pink silk is bordered with spider's web lace.

Serge Costumes.

Serge has been a favorite material this season for traveling dresses as well as boating costumes. It has also been made up in delicate colors by ladies desiring serviceable and at the same time effective cos tumes to wear at the various summer re sorts. In the illustrations here presented are two quite new styles in serge which can also be made to other materials.

SERVICEABLE AND EFFECTIVE COSTUMES. Very effective is the costume fushioned with a long jacket. This is in cream with colored serge. The novel effect in the of prizaming on the jacket cuffs and the panel of the skirt is produced with blue and gold braid. The remaining figure represents a gray serge costume ornamen ed with blue, gold and pink braid. The under bodice is of white and there with queer little designs in pink The sleeves and full basque are made of the same material.

DECORATIVE AND USEFUL

A Luxurious Shoulder Pillow, Pretty Draperies, Table Centers, Etc. Among new home luxuries are the shoulder pillows, which give comfort, combined with a bit of decoration, to a high, hard backed chair. The pillows are made eight to ten inches wide and twelve to fifeen in length, according to the size of the chair on which they are to be used. The material may be printed silk, china silk, plush or velvet, embroidered or plain. Silkoline is one of the prettiest of inexpen sive materials. These pillows are used in pairs by setting small gilt rings in the edges and lacing them together with rib-

The washable cretonnes make good bed draperies and spreads. Colored Marseilles in lovely tints is comparatively inexpen-sive and furnishes very attractive bed-

The prevailing fashion of dresses with no convenient pocket gives value to oddly shaped little bags for carrying the hand kerchief, which may be attached to the belt or hung from the arm.

A durable table center is made of plain white linea powdered over with any small flower, such as the daisy, forgetmenot or violet, worked in washing silk. Sachets of all kinds are made very large now, with double pockets and one corner turned down. A good brocade embroidered with the name in gold is pretty. Cord is most in use to finish off the edges.

Preserving Flowers and Ferns.

Take very fine sand, wash it perfectly clean and when dry sift it through a fine sieve into a pan. When the sand is deep enough to hold the flowers in an upright position, take some more sifted sand and carefully cover them. A spoon is a good thing to take for this as it fills in every chink and cranny without breaking or bending the leaves. When the pan is filled solidly, leave the flowers to dry for several days. It is a good plan to warm the sand in the oven before using it, as the flowers will then dry more thoroughly. In taking the sand off, great care must be taken not to break the leaves, as they are now dry and brittle. Pansies preserved in this way will keep their shape and bril-liancy of color all winter, according to the New York Tribune, and many other flowers can be equally successfully treatedanything, in fact, where the full pressure of the sand comes on both sides of the leaf, otherwise they will shrivel. To fill in flowers with cuplike shapes it is better to lay them on the sand and with a small spoon fill in and around each flower. Ferns when preserved in this way have a more natural look than when pressed, and the maidenhair fern looks almost as well as when it is freshly gathered.

Chocolate Eclairs.

Put one ounce each of butter and sugar with a short half plat of water and a pinch of sait into a pan, bring it to the boil, then lift it off the fire and stir in by degrees enough four to make it into a stiff paste Replace it on the fire and keep on stirring it till it leaves the sides of the pan. Now let it cool for a little, then break into it first one egg, then another, stirring it quickly all the time till the paste will work easily (this will take two or three eggs), then put it into a forcing bag with a plain pipe and force it out onto a baking tin. either in fingers or tiny heaps. Brush it over with whole beaten egg and bake for twenty to thirty minutes. When nicely colored take them out, let them cool, make an incision in the side of each, fill them with whipped cream flavored with vanilla. and ice with chocolate icing, for which cook two ounces of grated chocolate in a quarter of a pint of water till quite smooth, then mix it with one pound of icing sugar and three tablespoonfuls of warm water. Just warm it up and pour it over the eclairs.

Filigree Spoons.

As the spoon fad continues to rage throughout the width and breadth of the land each novelty in the way of souvenir spoons finds a welcome from the vast army of shoppers after something unique in this direction.

MEXICAN FILIGREE SPOONS. Numbered with the latest arrivals are the Mexican filigree spoons, a decided contrast to other styles. The delicate filigree work of the modern Mexican jeweler is composed of fine gold and silver wires, wrought in designs generally copied from nature and representing flowers, birds, but terflies, etc. The uniqueness of the designs, the rich colors of the original metals preserved in the work, and with-al the intrinsic value of the articles made of this material render them highly attractive and adapted for pres entation as souvenirs to meet the de mand for souvenirs in way of spoons. Many designs and styles of filigree handle spoons have been produced, two of which are shown in the cut here reproduced from The Jewelers' Circular. In some cases these spoons are rendeted local by an appli cation of the name of the town over the filigree.

Fruit Frosting for Fine Cake. il one cup sugar and one-third cup water segether until it will thread. Beat egg very stiff and pour on the white of one ggg very sain and pour on the sirup gradually, beating well. Stir cur-rants, seedless raising, citron, cocoanut or candied fruit of any shet (cut up fine) into the above and spread over the cake.

One Thing and Ano Powdered cinaamon strewn in the cracks of closets and other piaces where red ants of closets and other pieces where red and gather is said to be a secure.

Rubbing with common table salt and a dampened rag will remove egg stains from

For cleaning brass take or quart of rain water, add two ounces of ammonia and three ounces of precipitated chalk. Bottle and keep well corked, and shake before using. Galymized articles may be cleansed by a solution of one part of borax in sixteen rush or sponge A small box filed with lime and placed on a shelf in a pantry or closet helps to keep the air dry and sweet.

Regular custing with a soft brush or cloth should keep bronze clean, and a little ascept oil, gently rubbed, will remove the burble time that comes. RECIPES.

RECIPES.

Lightning bread yeast—Boll and mask 1 does good size I polatoes; mix thoroughly two tablespoonfuls of surar with two of salt and three of flour. Pour over this the hot potato water; add potatoes and three quarts of boiling water; when sufficiently cool add one cake of any good dry yeast; set in warm place to rise. This will keep a week in warm weather Bread.-Take a pint of yeast for each load of bread; add hot water to warm slightly; mix into loaves immediately; let rise very light and bake. Will be ready in an hour. When I want light rolls for tea I take a pint of flour, a spoonful each of sugar and sait, and use the yeast for mixing just as though it were milk. Rub the tops over with lar-or butter. Let stand in a very warm place Potatoe cakes. - Grate three medium sized potatoes, add one egg, two tablespoonfuls of melted butter, one-half cup of milk (or water), one-half tablespoonful of salt and flour enough to make a batter as for other griddle cakes. After all the above in-gredients are mixed add a heaping ten-spoonful of baking powder, stir in quickly and bake on a griddle. Mother's cookies.-Four eggs, one cupful of butter, two cupfuls of sugar, one tea-spoonful soda (scant), and flour to make a dough easily handled. Break the eggs into pan, and sugar and beat thoroughly; add outter and beat again; then add soda and lour; roll, sprinkle with sugar, press lightly with the rolling pin, cut out, and bake a delicate brown.—[Mrs. Leo Page. Dainty commeal muffins,-Two eggs, two tablespoonfuls white sugar, one and one-half cups sweet milk, one-half teaspoonful salt, one cup white Indian meal, two cups flour, one tablespoonful melted butter, two heaping teaspoonfuls baking powder; sift baking powder into the flour. Begin with the eggs and add all the other in-gredients in the order above given, and bake in gem pans for twenty minutes in a hot oven. These are delicious.

Sugar biscuits.—Two eggs, one-half pint f milk, one tablespoonful of lard, two tea-spoonfuls of baking powder, one cupful sugar, one and one-half pluts flour, pinch of sait. Mix into smooth batter, pour in gem pans and bake for ten minutes in a hot ven.

Rice waffles.—One cup of boiled rice, one pint of milk, two eggs, butter the size of a walnut, haif a teaspoonful of soda, one teaspoonful of cream of tarter, one teaspoon ful of salt, flour sufficient to make a thin batter. Bake in waffle irons.

Lemon sauce for steamed puddings,-Boil one cup of sugar in two cups of hot water for five minutes; add three tablespoonful-of cornstarch set in a little cold water. Boil all for ten minutes, then add the juice and grated rind of one lemon, and one teaspoonful of butter. Stir until the butter i meiled and serve at once.

Egg erackers - Five eggs, one cun of sweet milk, one-half tenspoonful of soits, one and one-half caps of butter. Mix with flour, knead twenty minutes, rell thin, cut any desired shape and bake.

Scalloped beef. One cup cold beef, chor ped fine; one-half cup mashed polators, one half teaspoonful of made mustard, enoug gravy to moisten the above, one cup mashe gravy to moisten the above, one cup masted, potatoes, two leaspoonfuls of butter, one cup of milk, one egg; mix the first of ingredients well and place in a greased baking dish. Now add the list four ingredients, mashing the potatoes, milk and butter together, and add the egg well beaten. Cover this over the top of the meat, and bake until a nice brown in a rather quick over

Baked tomatoes-Cover the bottom of a based tomatoes—Cover the motion of an earthen dish with ripe tomatoes silect. Then a layer of bread crambs, seasoned with pepper, salt and butter. Then another layer of tomatoes, and so continue till the dish is filled, lefting the tomatest layer be of the bread crambs. Bake lifteen minutes,

CORRESPONDENCE.

A few weeks ago a suggestion was made n this department to the young indi-his city that they organize a branch so if King's Daughters, and be in real or work during the winter. The tiracted the notice of a "Daughter he has sent from Kent county ng letter: I have read your appeal to the outched a responsive chord in a is name." I am gind to be identified watch noble workers for humanity, but the good ladies of your city and a band as forth to confort and bless many a sau hear

QUESTION ASKING.

A Useless and Disagreeable Habit Some times Innocently Indulged In. The English have an old proverb to the effect that those who ask no questions will be told no lies. It would be well to bear this surly old proverb ever in mind when tempted to make idle inquiries, advises Harper's Bazar, which has the following to say on the subject: We may have no bad motives when asking Mrs. A. how she became acquainted with Mrs. B.; we may not, in fact, care much about the matter; but it has occurred to us to wonder how, why and where a lady of such elegance and fashion as Mrs. A. should have become so intimate with the humble and quattractive Mrs. B. that the one can rarely be met without the other. So far no harm has been done. As we have asked no questions, no mischievous surmises have been set affoat, and no rude ness has been committed. It may be that neither woman would object to making known the origin of their friendship; but it may also be that to tell it would be to unfold a long story of sorrow or misfortune. Every one detests the scandalmonger, but his occupation would be gone without the aid of the questioner. The latter motives may be innocent, but the results of his vulgar impertinence are often disastrous. Every one who feels in himself a rising inquiry in regard to the private affairs of others should crush it. Parents ural curiosity of their children into useful and elevating channels." A little girl of eight years stood squarely before a visitor of her mother's, her large blue eyes staring unfalteringly while she asked, as if the answers were her due:

should use every effort to divert the nat-

"You were away from home last week."
Mrs. M. Where did you go? Whom did you go to see? What did you go to? Did Mr. M. go with you? Why didn't he go? Why did you stay so long?
And so on and on, the visitor meanwhile making frantic efforts to maintain a constant while making frantic efforts to maintain a constant with the child's maintain a constant while making frantic efforts to maintain a constant with the child's maintain a constant with the child's maintain a constant while making frantic efforts to maintain a constant while maki "You were away from home last weaed as she was between her own curiosity which was keen as that of her child, and a half perception of the impoliteness of the interrogator.

Having returned to her own home Mrs. M. began examining herself in regard to her own methods with her children.

"Have I ever suffered them," she de-manded of herself, "to ask questions in regard to matters which do not concern them?" A low voice sounded in her heart with painful clearness: "Yes, I have, and worse. There is hardly a day in which I have not asked useless and sometimes even impertinent questions of my own family and include friends, even if I have no been thus impolite to chance acquait ances." If more of us listened for kill to the accusations of conscience the number of ill bred questioners would speedily diminish. A friendly interest receives confidences with pleasure and guards them with care. It neither demands nor reveals with painful clearness: "Yes, I have, and with care. It neither demands nor reveals.

One Thing and Another. Dr. Chase, in writing upon the foods, makes the statement that if a man addicted to the use of intoxicants will eat an orange half an hour before breakfast every morning for three weeks he will lose for liquor and gain in health and strength.

The real value of milk and butter and cheese as foods is only half appreciated in America. In the old countries, where meats are rarely on the table of the middle and poorer classes, wilk and cheese are leading articles of food. A writer who calls freekies good, wholesome adornments, over which no young woman should feet too much, nevertheless ives the following recipe for a lotion to reduce their prominence: Mix two drams of lavender water with one dram of chloride of ammonia and a pint of water Rules for Good Eyes tht. The following simple rule for the preservation of the eyesight are worth remembering: Keep a shade on your lamp or gas burner. Avoid all sudden changes between light and darkness. Never begin to read, write or sew for several minutes after com ing from darkness into light. Never read by twilight, moonlight or any light so scant that it requires an effort to discrimi-

Never read or sew directly in front of the light, window or door. It is best to let the light fail from above, obliquely over the left shoulder. Never sleep so that on first awakening the eyes shall open on the light of a window. The moment you are instinctively prompted to rub your eyes that

1000

Money returned if not represent the compagnation of the return of the re YOURSELF Mention the Fort Worth Car-AILPR ELEVATOR

Inproves Market Value of Cotion DUDLEY E. JONES CO THE LABEL OR your paper, note, renew promptly. All purers are stopped on the day to which the are prepaid. THE CELEBRATED Smith & Wesson Revolvers

Grant tell John UN BEVALED FO ACEURACY, DUIABBLITT WORKMANSHIP, SECONDENIENCE IN LOADING

Have for AN NOURA DR. BO-SAN-KO'S Pifes Dr. Bosanko Ned. Co. Mention the Fort Worth

Dipsomania. A good many cures for dipsomants been proposed before now, but recently the results have bethat a French savant, M. Luton the problem. Nitrate of str ministered hypodermically in m "does the trick." After ten da treatment chronic alcoholists acq a loathing for stimulants that of their once favorite bever nausea and headache. Drs. and Jergolski have used str more than 500 patients, with good realts. One sufferer who in the habit of taking one-built of schnapps a day was enred atting.

Suscribe for the West Half of It. "What hymn did I understand say?" inquired the Sunday s. of the young lady who presided at lodeon, and who had just and close the service, the superiabsent. "Sing half of 246," she answered st at his nervousness an . confus on "We will now clase by singing." addressing the school-"by singing by 123."-Harper's Lazur.

When Boy and sick, we gave her Castoria

When the was a Culid, she cried for Caster's Whole has became Ming the clang to Caster's When she had Children, she gave them Caster's